ROBERT T. GRIMES,

Importing Tailor and Men's Furnisher.

No. 322 King St., Alexandria, Va. { No. 1335 E St., n. w. Washington, D. C.

I believe it is possible to build up a much larger tailoring business in Alexandria than has ever existed here. I believe also that while PRICES is a factor, the first and most important thing is THOROUGHLY GOOD WORK. In other words while men want low prices they also demand good cloth and well cut, and well made garments. I have bought both here and in Europe a bigger stock of high grade cloths than usual, and at advanced prices. I have the best workmen that money can hire, and I am attending right to business myself as I have been these twelve years. I have carefully counted the cost of everything; I have figured out how much such work should bring, but how little I can do it for, and I am going to make the price $20 PER SUIT, and Robert T. Grimes's well cut, well made TROUSERS at $5.

THE ALEXANDRIA SESQUICENTENNIAL.

On Thursday, the 12th inst., Alexandria had her sesqui-centennial celebration.

It would be useless for us to attempt to give a full account of the proceedings on that day, as many of our readers have already read the same in the daily newspapers. The splendid old city surpassed the expectations of every one. It is not flattery to say that the celebration in every detail was a grand success. The weather was perfect and nothing occurred to mar the pleasures of the day. The committee had worked faithfully and intelligently and everything passed off with a promptness and regularity rarely displayed on such occasions. All the streets were beautifully and profusely decorated. Everybody kept open house; visitors were entertained with lavish hospitality; three U. S. war vessels were attractive features, while the parade, which was a very long one, was said by all to have eclipsed the Dewey parade in Washington. Fairfax was represented to a limited extent, while Alexandria county, particularly that part of it in the vicinity of the town of Ballston, had a fine flat and many men in line. The parade at night was also very fine; the crowd was immense, and the noise well, it was deafening.

Young boys and girls who live to witness the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the founding of the city will tell of the great time in Alexandria on the 12th of October, 1899.

The newspapers gave splendid accounts of the celebration. The Gazette seemed, as it always does, to give every essential fact in compact form.

People who had said that Alexandria was a "dead town," had an awakening to the real facts of the case which they will not soon forget. It is to be hoped that the good old city will profit by this wonderfully fine celebration. Her merchants and business men are liberal and progressive and should be encouraged, and deserve the patronage of the surrounding country, who sometimes go to Washington to supply their wants, and are frequently losers thereby. Our people should take pride in standing by the good old city which has always been true to the State, and has never hesitated or faltered in adhering to the right.—[Fairfax Herald.]

A ROTHSCCHILD WEDDING.

The wedding of Lord Rothchild's daughter, Lady Charlotte Evelina Rothschild, to Lieutenant Clive Behrens, which was solemnized at the new West End Synagogue, Bayswater, says the London Leader, was a modest and unostentatious ceremony—almost even to sobriety.

The Jews are proud of their Rothschilds, and if there is anything that would increase that pride it is that Evelina Rothschild did not go outside the community for a husband, and that that husband was not a banker or business man, but one of the rapidly-increasing band of Jewish officers in the army and a son of a well-known Jewish philanthropist of Manchester.

After the choir had burst out in the joyous hymn, "Blessed Be He That Cometh in the Name of the Lord," the bride procession entered and took its place under the chupah—a handsome canopy under which from time immemorial Jewish weddings have been invariably performed.

The bride wore a magnificent dress of rich ivory satin; the bridesmaids—one of them Lady Sibyl Primrose—were in blue liberty satin, and wore cream Leghorn hats, with red roses tied under the chin with black ribbon velvet.

There were also several page-boys in flesh colored stockings, blue satin shoes with large buckles, and white Cavalier hats with white feathers. All together a charming little procession.

The Rev. S. Singer, the former teacher of the bride, then delivered an eloquent little address to the couple, dwelling upon the beauty and triumph of love, which conquers all things, and adorning his periods with quotations from the "Song of Songs," the great Hebrew idyll.

Then came the pledging of troth—a recent innovation in Jewry, but in which lady champions will rejoice to hear the bride promises to love her husband, but not to obey him. There is no question of that.

Then followed certain curious benedictions in Hebrew glorifying marriage chastity, and then the bridegroom, placing the ring on the bride's finger, repeated the words, "Behold, thou art consecrated to me by this ring, according to the law of Moses and Israel." The usual Jewish wedding formula.

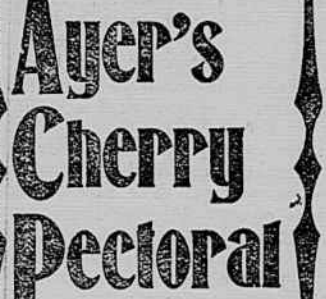

The chief rabbi, attired in white and scarlet academic robes, then read the six benedictions prescribed at Hebrew marriages, after which a small white glass was laid upon the floor, and the bridegroom was asked to stamp upon it and crush it. This breaking of the glass is variously explained as a hint that life has its shades as well as its light, and as a reminder of the desolation of Jerusalem and the still unended captivity of Israel.

The chief rabbi then solemnly pronounced the pentateuchal blessing, "The Lord bless thee and keep thee," and the marriage was over.

A Life and Death Fight.

Mr. W. A. Hines, of Manchester, Ia., writing of his almost miraculous escape from death, says: "Exposure after measles induced serious lung trouble, which ended in Consumption. I had frequent hemorrhages and coughed night and day. All my doctors said I must soon die. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me. I would not be without it even if it cost $5.00 a bottle. Hundreds have used it on my recommendation and all say it never fails to cure Throat, Chest and Lung troubles." Three Doctors in Consultation.

(From Benjamin Franklin.)

"When you are sick, what you like best is to be chosen for a medicine in the first place; what experience tells you is best, to be chosen in the second place; what reason (i. e., theory) says is best to be chosen in the last place. But if you can get Dr. Incledon, Dr. Experience and Dr. Reason to hold a consultation together, they will give you the best advice that can be taken."

When you have a bad cold Dr. Incledon would recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy because it is pleasant and safe to take. Dr. Experience would recommend it because it never fails to effect a speedy and permanent cure. Dr. Reason would recommend it because it is prepared on scientific principles and acts on nature's plan in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions and restoring the system to a natural and healthy condition. For sale by all Druggists.

Millions of dollars is the value placed by Mrs. Mary Bird, Harrisburg, Pa., on the life of her child, which she saved from croup by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. It cures all coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. Edgar Wardfield, Jr., corner King and Pitt streets.
